With only one exception, all of these men are presently employed in some capacity at the Chimala Mission, and therefore have not needed personal support. As with any school, however, there are students who for different reasons discontinue their studies at the Chimala Bible College. As a result, there are student “vacancies.” But Bernard, our director, is on top of this and in the process of recruiting new students. These future students will probably need personal support.

In future newsletters, I will make these student needs known and will be asking those of you who can to “adopt a student.” This simply means making a commitment in assisting a student with his personal support for his two-year school term.

Current Needs

- One-time help with Mary’s trip to Tanzania in May. She will be going with me when I go for the short courses at CBC.
- Financial help to install e-mail/internet service for the Chimala Mission. This will not only vastly improve our ability to communicate with the college but will also provide a valuable research tool for the students, and enable the missionaries to communicate with home.
- Monthly commitments for my on-going work-fund needs.
